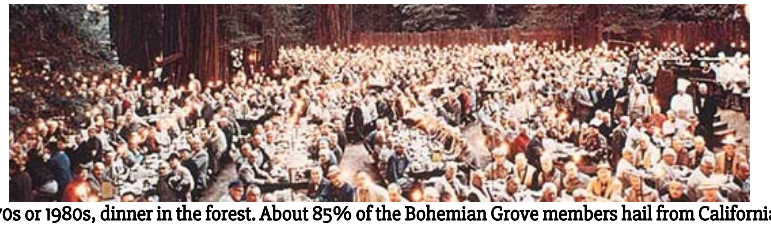
Intro

July 23, 1950, Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Edward Teller, and Ernest Lawrence at the Bohemian Grove.

The Bohemian Grove is one of the more important places in the United States where businessmen, politicians, army officers, and scientists can sit around with each other and talk about anything they're interested in. Although networking officially is not allowed, going on summer camp together clearly aids in the "bonding process" - a concept everyone is familiar with from school or work. It's no surprise then that the expression "makes it easier to pick up the phone" has been mentioned more than once. In contrast to business, politics can be discussed openly in the Grove and it seems that whether or not a particular candidate is liked by the Bohemians can make or break his career. Going through membership lists, the vast majority of members belong the Republican Party.

If the reader is interested in my thoughts on the symbolism surrounding the Cremation of Care and the Bohemian Grove, take a look here. It might be better not to discuss any of that material here in this article.

On this page the reader can find a short historical timeline of the Bohemian Grove, a list of some of the relatively recent visitors of camp Mandalay, an analysis of the handful of British visitors, and the layout and location of the Bohemian Grove itself. The membership list included with this article consists of more than 550 names, all of them with biographies, some more extensive than others. There's a separate list of the 104 Bohemian Grove camps. At the bottom of this article the reader can find many cached references in which a lot of the names in the membership list can be found.



1970s or 1980s, dinner in the forest. About 85% of the Bohemian Grove members hail from California.

The material in this article deals with topics I generally missed in all the other articles about the Bohemian Grove, so I guess most of you will find it a useful expansion.

Brief timeline of the Bohemian Club and the Bohemian Grove.

1872	The Bohemian Club is organized in San Francisco as a gathering place for men who like the arts and literature. The clubhouse is located in the Astor Hotel on Sacramento Street and the owl is picked as the club's symbol.
1874	The Club has 182 members.
1875	The Bohemian Club's motto, "Weaving spiders, come not here", first appears on a Club announcement. It was taken from Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream.
1877	The Club has outgrown the Astor Hotel and moves to 430 Pine Street in San Francisco.
1878	Several dozen Bohemians hold a Jinks in the forest in Sonoma County near what is now known as Camp Taylor (California Historical Society, Bohemian Club 1947). This will be the start of a long Bohemian tradition of trekking to the Sonoma County redwoods during July and August of each year for camping and entertainment.
1882	The Club's patron saint becomes John of Nepomuk. Legend has it that St. John was killed in 1393 at the orders of Wenceslaus IV, King of the Bohemians & King of the Holy Roman Empire, because he didn't want to disclose the confessional secrets of Queen Johanna of Bohemia. Today, St. John symbolizes the right to privacy of the Bohemians.

1885	The extremely successful Joseph D. Redding is elected president of the Bohemian Club. He will devise the Cremation of Care in 1893. Where he got his inspiration for the ceremony isn't clear. Redding is a very successful attorney for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, owned by the Rockefeller-connected Pilgrims Society families of Harriman & Harkness. Redding is considered a musical genius.
1887	The Club has 561 members, which are a combination of literary figures and San Francisco businessmen. Among them are 4 members of the Crocker banking family, 3 Spreckles, William Randolph Hearst, Bay Area shipbuilder Arthur W. Moore, columnist and writer Ambrose Bierce, writer Henry George, and 14 officers from the Army and Navy. Other Bohemian Club writers are Charles K. Field, Ina Coolbrith, Bret Harte, Daniel O'Connell, and Mark Twain.
1892	The 70 ft. high Buddha statue is built within the Sequoia Valley, now known as the Bohemian Grove. It is modeled after the Daibutsu of Kamakura, the Great Buddha from Japan. The statue used to be part of the Cremation of Care.
1893	Joseph D. Redding creates the Cremation of Care and serves as High Priest of Bohemia during this ceremony. Within a couple of years he will move his business to New York where he also becomes part of high society. The Bohemian Club starts renting a piece of land in the Sequoia Valley from the Sonoma Lumber Company. They will do this until 1899 when they make their first land purchase.
1899	The Bohemian Club buys a 160 acre piece of land in the Sequoia Valley, today known as the Bohemian Grove. The Club will make twenty-eight purchases of land over a 67 year period. Today it owns 2,712 acres. The New York Times writes two articles about the Cremation of Care and how impressive it is.
1905	The Washington Post reads: "The Taft party to-day visited the Bohemian grove of redwoods...", which is the first reference I have seen to presidents visiting the Bohemian Grove.
1913	The Cremation of Care ceremony is moved to the first weekend of the encampment.
1914	The Bohemian Club has 1259 members, of which 787 resident members, 241 non-resident members, 19 Navy officers, 49 Army officers, 29 faculty members, 114 associate members, and 20 honorary members.
mid 1920s	The Lake is built. It is about 100 feet wide and 400 feet long. Or for everybody outside of the United States: 30 meters wide and 124 meters long.

1929	The concrete owl is build. There are 169 different camps in the Bohemian Grove at this point.
summer 1933	The Club takes up residence at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel when the dismantling of the old clubhouse begins. The club has grown to about 2000 members. A large new Club House is opened the following year.
1941	Membership drops to 1643 due to World War II.
1950	Big names as Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover and Edward Teller are visiting the Grove.
1977	Big names as Henry Kissinger, George Shultz, John McCone, Gerald Ford, the Kaisers and Bechtels are present at the prestigious Mandalay Camp at the Bohemian Grove.
1981	The Lake is relined with earth and concrete. It has an artificial waterfall tumbling into it, and water lilies are kept in natural-looking patterns by water jets embedded in the lake bottom. The only natural aspect to the lake is the early morning mist rising off it every morning.
1994	There are 124 camps in the Bohemian Grove.

Camp Mandalay

Many camps in the Bohemian Grove house very prestigious visitors. You have camps like Cave Man, Hideaway, Hill Billies, Hillside, Isle of Aves, Lost Angels, Mandalay, Midway, Owl's Nest, Sempervirens, Silverado Squatters, and Stowaway. Mandalay seems to be the camp for international relations and consists of more than a few members officially or otherwise connected to foreign policy and the CIA. Mandalay is the only camp the average visitor cannot just walk into; an appointment or formal invitation is necessary. If you're cleared for access, you are taken up the hill with a Bechtel-designed electric pulley.

Many members of camps like Hill Billies or Stowaway (Rockefellers and Morgans) in particular have previously been invited to Mandalay.

British visitors

Historically British Bohemian Grove visitors appear to have been closely connected to the British royal family and the major banks in London. In later years we also see a variety of intellectuals appear. The individuals below are the only ones that I've been able to find so far.

Prince Philip	Sources: 1972, Norman Loyall McLaren, "Prince Philip in the Grove (p. 456; page includes picture of Prince Philip at the Grove)" Made an off-season visit to the Bohemian Grove in November 1962.
Queen Elizabeth	Reports exist that the Queen visited the Bohemian Grove in 1983. This would be interesting to confirm or disprove, especially because ordinarily women aren't allowed in the Bohemian Grove.
Andrew Knight	Sources: 1994, Peter Martin Phillips, 'A Relative Advantage: Sociology of the San Francisco Bohemian Club, Appendix F' June 19, 2001, Counterpunch, 'Meet the Secret Rulers of the World' Relatively recent visitor of camp Mandalay. Governor of the Ditchley Foundations since 1981. Editor of The Economist and expanded its offices to Brussels. Director of Rothschild Investment Trust since 1997. Important functions at Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. and BskyB. Director of Reuters. Governor of the Atlantic Institute for International Affairs. Governing council of the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Member of the steering committee of Bilderberg.
John Major	Sources: July 12-18, 2001 issue of the Northern California Bohemian Recent visitor who gave at least one speech at the Bohemian Grove. Prime Minister of the U.K. 1990-1997. Chairman of Carlyle Europe since 2001. Chairman of the Ditchley Foundation since 2005 and a member of the Queen's Privy Council. Robert Cecil, a Cercle member of one of the oldest aristocratic families in Great Britain, and former Rothschild employee and Cercle chairman

	Lord Norman Lamont were running his election campaigns.
Lord Christopher F. Patten	Sources: date unknown, Mary Moore, Sonoma County Free Press Held at least one speech at the Bohemian Grove in 1998. Member of the Privy Council since 1989. As the last Governor of Hong Kong, he left the state on July 1, 1997, together with The Prince of Wales, on board of the HM Yacht Britannia. As a solid member of the superclass, involved in the Tory Reform Group, the Global Leadership Foundation (GLF), The Hague Institute for Global Justice, the European Movement, Europaeum, George Soros' European Council on Foreign Relations (ECFR) and other NGOs.
Lord Peter Levine	Sources: August 5, 1999, Mary Moore, Sonoma County Free Press, 'Bohemian Grove - Lakeside talks & other mischief' Former advisor to Margaret Thatcher. Became Lord Mayor of London in 1998. Gave a speech at the Bohemian Grove in 1999 called We Reinvented Government Before You Did. Chairman of Lloyd's of London in 2004. Patron of the Lloyd's Yacht Club.
Sir John Keegan	Sources: August 12, 1929, Time Magazine, 'Revived Rails' An English military historian specializing in 20th-century wars. Lectured for 26 years at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst. Defence Correspondent. Knighted in 2000.
Sir Hubert Brand	Sources: August 12, 1929, Time Magazine, 'Revived Rails' Rear-Admiral in the British navy, extra equerry to the King (1922), principal naval aide to the King (1931-1932), and a visitor of the Bohemian Grove in the early part of the 20th century (at least in 1929). Known to have visited the Pilgrims Society in 1929. One of his brothers, Lord Robert Brand, was a major player in Milner's Round Table, according to Carroll Quigley.
